Current projects

Book manuscript, Mastering the Middle Ages: the Afterlives of Geoffrey Chaucer and William Langland.

An analysis of the tracks of Chaucer and Langland's poetry and personae from the sixteenth through nineteenth centuries in terms of reform, progress, and loss. Chapters refigure Chaucer's trace as writer and figure via sixteenth-century folio editions of his work; Hamlet's "conscience" recast by allegorical figures in Piers Plowman; Chaucer's shadow in Winter's Tale; the conscious literary medievalisms of Henry VIII that invent and reflect the medieval and early modern; refiguring emblems of loss apparent in theatre but answered by gendered "medieval masters"; Chaucer's and Langland's passus in George Eliot's 19th century realist-reformist fiction Middlemarch and what they mean for literary history.
